YOUTH BADLY BURNED IN MOTORBIKE CRASH

Horribly burned as the result of the bursting into flame of a gas-tank on a motorcycle, following a crash into a culvert at the intersection of Azusa avenue with the Covina boulevard last Saturday, Clarence McCumskey, 17 years old, a high school boy, has been hovering between life and death this week at the Pomona hospital. Advice yesterday as to his condition were to the effect that he has aroused somewhat from the coma caused by the burns, and had slept somewhat better than on previous nights. There is some hope for his recovery, according to hospital physicians.

The accident is one of many that have occurred at this dangerous corner, and so far as can be determined was unavoidable on the part of any of the participants. An automobile driven by F. L. Dingman, well-known Azusa rancher, rounded the corner just as the motorcycle driven by Harry Dulin, with McCumskey as a passenger, attempted to cross the intersection. The boys were on their way home to West Covina, going west.

There have been conflicting statements as to the manner in which the accident occurred, but it is understood that the Dingman automobile started to make the turn, that Dingman saw the boys coming and put on his brakes in order not to strike them, and that the boys attempted to go around the rear of his machine, and swerved into a concrete culvert.

The gasoline of the motorcycle was said to have ignited almost immediately, enveloping McCumskey in flames. These could not be extinguished until the boy was fearfully burned, in spite of the fact that Dingman and others worked heroically. The Azusa rancher gave every possible assistance to the boys. Dulin was badly bruised, but was not seriously hurt.

Almost immediately after the accident occurred a machine in which Dulin's brother Homer, and Carroll Nye, Earl Harnish and David McMillan were returning from Los Angeles, reached the scene, and the boys rushed the injured men to the office of Dr. Wallace Reed, where first aid was given. It was discovered that the whole lower part of McCumskey's body had been burned, with the clothing practically burned away. A burn the size of a man's hand was also found on his abdomen. Dr. Reed immediately realized that the boy's condition was very grave, and he was rushed to the Pomona hospital, where since that time he has lain in a stupor, arousing somewhat during the last twenty-four hours.

Clarence McCumskey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McCumskey of Puente boulevard, and is one of the popular boys of the Covina high school. His serious condition has cast a shadow over the opening of school this week.

KRANZ BOY SUCCUMBS TO ATTACK OF DYSENTERY

Following only a few days of illness from dysentery, Walter P. Kranz, eight years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Kranz of Arroyo Drive, West Covina, died last Wednesday, the case being one that was unusual in many respects.

The boy became ill from what seemed to have been an over-indulgence in fruit, and was treated by local physicians, who diagnosed the case as dysentery. Specialists from Pomona and Los Angeles were called in, but without avail. It is said that deaths in this valley from this cause are almost unknown.

The funeral was held last Friday at two o'clock at the Custer parlors, after which there were additional services at the Lutheran church, of which the parents are members. Both services were attended by a large number of sorrowing friends.

CHURCH APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO PURCHASE PIPE ORGAN

At a meeting of the official board of the Covina Methodist church held on Wednesday evening, Messrs. W. P. Watts, Harry Gordon, Randall Chew, E. P. Warner and George W. Aschenbrenner were appointed as a committee on the purchase of the new pipe organ for the church.

The committee will at once secure specifications for an organ suitable for the church, after which bids will be asked from several of the leading organ builders of the country. It is expected that the organ will be installed by next Easter. The organ is the gift of W. P. Watts, the well known orange grower of South Citrus avenue.

LEGION STAGES SUCCESS IN BOXING CONTEST

Fun galore, with lots of action, and with plenty of opportunity for the assembled fans to yell their heads off, resulted from the amateur boxing contest staged by the local post of the American Legion Monday night in the Knights of Pythias hall.

Fast bouts between good material found in the valley and fistic aspirants from the balloon school at Arcadia, made the evening one of interest from the start of the program. The hall was jammed with spectators, and the management was obliged to turn away a third as many as were able to get into the hall.

The big contest of the evening proved to be between Edgar Bird of the Balloon school and Frank Sabo, ring-side 130 pounds. This was not only a spirited boxing number, but developed some heavy hitting, resulting in Bird hitting the canvas three times in the first round. Bird was said to be the better boxer, and is known to have been approached by the Vernon management for appearance as a light-weight amateur, but Sabo seemed to have the punch. Referee Bert Mill gave the decision to Sabo on the good work of that boxer in the first round, and this decision made the soldier somewhat peeved, but he was induced to see the decision in its proper light.

The evening began with a match between Ritchie and Noble at 145 pounds, followed by English and Covert at 130, and White and Elliott at 140. These were all balloon school boys. Stowell and Whalen boxed at 130 pounds; Owens and Tarr at 140; Roy Walters and Seaman at 150 pounds; Roy Koch, brother of John Koch, and Mannikan of Azusa at 145 pounds; Simmons and Noble at 135 pounds. Roy Walters proved to be one of the attractions of the evening. He is the white hope of the Owl Fumigating Company at Azusa.

The legion made a nice little sum out of the entertainment, which will be applied on some needed equipment. It is the intention of the post to hold other sport contests, and the members are now casting about with the idea of finding a suitable place where the seating capacity will be greater and the conditions better for a big program.

The referee was Bert Mills; announcer, C. D. Fabrick, and timekeeper, J. L. Matthews of the Argus, who said that he had the time of his life. The matches were arranged by Miles Seofield, who is to begin at once the making up of another program for the near future.

WALNUT GROWERS TO STAGE FIELD DAY

Walnut growers from all parts of Southern California will gather today (Friday) in the commodious new packing house of La Puente Valley Walnut Growers' Association at Puente, on the occasion of the first annual field day for walnut growers, staged by the walnut growers' department of the Los Angeles county farm bureau.

The program for this first annual field day offers much of interest to every walnut grower in Southern California. The meeting is being held just before the harvesting season begins, so that growers will be able to get away from home. The place is centrally located, so far as Los Angeles county is concerned, and is readily accessible to all walnut districts by boulevards. The district surrounding Puente is one of the largest walnut ground areas in the state, and last year Puente growers constructed the largest and most up-to-date packing houses in the world. In addition, this district boasts of a 100 per cent membership in the California Walnut Growers' Association.

Assembling at 10:30 a. m. at the packing house, the morning session will be devoted to a field study of the new walnut foot rot disease, which is becoming a serious menace in so many districts. Trees showing this disease will be visited and growers given an opportunity to become familiar with it. Leaders in the discussion will be Farm Advisor Robert W. Hodgson of Los Angeles county, Dr. L. D. Batchelor of the citrus experiment station, and D. C. Wylie of the Walnut Growers' Association field department. It is expected that a strong resolution will be passed urging the experiment station to put a pathologist to work on this problem.

At noon a basket lunch will be served in the packing house, with coffee served by the local association.

At 1 o'clock the speaking program will begin with a short address of welcome to visitors and guests. It is expected that President C. C. Teague of the California Walnut Growers' Association will deliver the main address of the afternoon, covering the tariff fight at Washington, followed by General Manager Carlyle Thorpe, reviewing the past year's operations and discussing prospects for the coming season, together with recommendations to growers for the handling of the new crop.

Prof. J. W. Nelson of Berkeley, a noted soil expert, has been invited to discuss soil moisture and irrigation problems as applicable to walnuts. Those growers who have heard Prof. Nelson will testify that any one of his addresses is worth a good deal more than the loss of a day's work. The meeting will conclude with a brief discussion of farm bureau departmental organization by Farm Advisor Robert W. Hodgson, followed by a short business session of the department, election of officers and the outlining of a program for the coming year.

School Enrollments Show Marked Attendance Gain

Nearly 850 scholars poured into the schools in Covina this week, beginning the city's largest enrollment in history, and resulting in an overflow of the buildings that caused an assignment of classes to churches and public halls.

Five classes of the Covina union high school are being taught in the rooms of the First Baptist church, while the manual training classes of the Covina city grammar school are making use of Coolman's hall. All high school classrooms are crowded beyond capacity, with two pupils occupying one seat during some periods. The grammar school has enough seating capacity, with opportunity for taking care of the added increase that will develop during this month, but is obliged to teach sloyd in the nearby hall because the sloyd rooms have been made over into classrooms during the summer. The large sloyd room has been partitioned in the center, and furnishes a music room and a classroom. These two rooms were not quite ready for occupation this week, so that one class has been using the auditorium as a classroom.

The grammar school, under the direction of Miss Eva D. Edwards, principal, is functioning with admirable precision, all classes having been settled for study an hour after the opening of school on Monday. Miss Edwards says that she is particularly pleased with the teaching personnel this year. One of the distinct features is that of the supervised play, which is being handled by a teacher thoroughly trained in this work, who also teaches physiology and civics. The kindergarten department starts off with 42 tots. The two first grade rooms have an enrollment of 36 pupils each, and other grades run from 28 to 32 scholars in each room. This number will be increased during the month, which will bring the school completely up to its present capacity.

The new pictures, which were provided for last year through the activity of students, have arrived, and are being made ready to hang in the classrooms. One of them is a striking reproduction of the statue of Abraham Lincoln, by St. Gaudens, taken from the original in Chicago.

HIGH SCHOOL INCREASE.
The enrollment at the high school, including fifteen part-time students, is 325, with an increase expected during the month. Superintendent Millikan said that there always was an increase, as not all families are settled and ready for school at the time for opening. This number is an increase of 100 scholars over that of last year, with the probability of an added fifteen to twenty-five. All available room has been taken in all the classrooms, with scholars sitting together in one seat in some of the periods.

The transportation of five classes to the Baptist church is accomplished by trucks at various times during the day. This is a heavy loss of time, the principal says, but is the only method in which the scholars can be taught at present.

FOOTBALL LOOMS UP.
Conch McIntosh has had squads out on the field each afternoon for football practice, the boys to the number of forty-five participating in the try-outs. The coach is certain that he is going to have a scrappy team, and although the main team will probably run lighter in weight than some of the larger schools, he is banking on an excess of pep and school spirit to put the school in the running for grid honors. The coach suggests that town people who are interested in furthering the sports of the school come to the practices and look the bunch over. He believes strongly in backing by the town to make a winning team.

BEN MAXSON INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Colliding with a delivery automobile near the corner of San Francisco and Sunset avenues last Tuesday morning, Ben Maxson, eighteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Maxson of West Covina, was seriously injured, while both machines were badly damaged. The driver of the machine that struck the car in which young Maxson was riding received a broken collar bone and serious bruises.

The cause of the collision is unexplained. Maxson was returning from Taft in a machine driven by the man who owns the Taft property where he had been at work. There was another man in the machine, the party returning from having done work at Taft.

The delivery machine was owned by the Fleishman Yeast company, and was overturned in the crash. The driver, whose name was not learned, was pinned beneath the machine for a few minutes, and upon being extricated was taken to Los Angeles. Maxson received a gash over the eyebrow in which eight stitches were taken by Dr. Wallace A. Reed. Fear of a fatal loss of blood was felt at first, as a large artery was severed, but this was checked in time. He was also badly bruised. At the home yesterday his mother said that he was recovering rapidly from the experience, and it was hoped that the gash would not leave a bad scar. The wound was caused from flying glass from a windshield.

PALACE OF SWEETS IN NEW INTERIOR GARB

Hungry noon-day crowds are taxing the capacity of the Palace of Sweets in Covina, in spite of the fact that the proprietor, Herve A. Werden, has just completed improvements that increase the opportunity for seating.

Mr. Werden has had the establishment completely remodelled, with new carpets, new wall-paper and tinting, and with an additional row of booths. It has become one of the most popular meeting and eating places in the valley.

FULLERTON DIVINE GIVES FINE ADDRESS HERE

"Education, the Hope of the World," was the scholarly and most thoughtful address delivered last Sunday night in the Covina grammar school auditorium by Rev. F. M. Dowling of Fullerton, who is remembered here as the first pastor of the Covina Christian church. The subject was selected because of the opening of the schools on the following day, and many scholars were present. The services were participated in by the pastors of the city.

Rev. Dowling has not been an active occupant of the pulpit for some years, but is engaged in business in Fullerton, where he is a member of the high school board.

PEEL, VINEGAR MADE FROM ORANGE PEEL

San Dimas Press: That there are other uses for oranges in addition to being used as an edible in the raw state or made into marmalade, was emphasized recently in an address made before the annual meeting of the Pomona Fruit Growers' Exchange by E. T. Cassel, a grower of the Covina section, who is now devoting all his time to experimental work at the Exchange By-Products company in San Dimas.

D. A. Field is the manager of the company, but Mr. Field is giving the well-known grower every facility for carrying on his experiments, which are made with the view toward salvaging every portion of the orange, no matter in what condition or size it may be. The peel is now being dehydrated and is purchased by large manufacturers of tobacco products. It is used, it was said by Mr. Cassel, in making and flavoring of plug tobacco. This will be news to many who "take a chew," inasmuch as few of these devotees of the weed in that form are aware that oranges enter into their ends.

This dehydrated peel is also sold for use in mince meat, while still more of the same goes into pie filler. Another use for the peel is to pack it in brine, and it is in this form, said Mr. Cassel, that it is bought by the makers of candied orange peel. The company is putting out a small quantity of marmalade, but the aim is to turn out products that entail the least amount of extraneous material, such as sugar or spices, and now a market is opening up for orange pulp, a cooked and sterilized product that can be sold to marmalade manufacturers in the east. By selling it in the bulk, it is also unnecessary to carry a stock of glassware in hand, which also would tie up considerable capital. The aim is, it was stated by Mr. Cassel, to sell what is as nearly as possible the raw product, but also to utilize every part of the fruit.

A product which has met with flattering reception is orange vinegar, which he says is the finest vinegar in the world. All other vinegar, he emphasized, contains no other acid that acetic acid, which has no value except as a condiment. Orange vinegar, on the other hand, contains at least one-fifth proportion of citric acid, which has a high dietetic value, he points out, and hence the great advantage of the orange vinegar. The principal item, said Mr. Cassel in conclusion, is to establish a process of concentration or total dehydration of the orange juice. This has not as yet been accomplished, but Mr. Cassel is putting in much time on experimental work along this line, which, when accomplished, it is believed, will work a revolution in the citrus industry.

He is also working on a model for a machine that will produce an orange oil. This oil is made in Europe by hand, and because of cheap labor over there, California cannot compete, but with the perfection of a machine for this purpose it is anticipated that this situation will be reversed.

NO ARBUCKLE FILM FOR STAR THEATER

The management of the Star theater in Covina announces that a "Fatty" Arbuckle comedy, billed as a part of the program for next Wednesday and Thursday nights, has been withdrawn. Another comedy, Jimmy Arberry in "The Decorator," will be substituted. Tonight and Saturday nights a Marshall Neilan picture, "Bob Hampton of Placer," will be shown, featuring James Kirkwood and little Wesley Barry, the latter being the freckle-faced kid who has made such a remarkable success in the movies. Too much cannot be said of this picture from the standpoint of exciting interest. It is the story of a United States cavalry officer, wrongfully accused of a crime, who loses his commission, but who dies on the field of battle, along with his little chum, in that tragic engagement when General Custer's entire command was wiped out by the Indians. The story of the Custer massacre is faithfully portrayed, with hundreds of Indians and troops engaged. The scenes were taken on the famous battleground.

Monday and Tuesday nights of next week comes "Mother o' Mine," a Thomas Ince picture, portraying the love of an mother for a son wrongfully accused of murder. This great mother love finally leads to a thrilling scene when the mother forces a confession from a perjurer. As an augmentation of the picture, Mrs. Blanche Marshall will sing Kipling's "Mother o' Mine," appearing on both evenings.

MISDIRECTED MAIL.

An editorial about misdirected mail, printed in the Grand Rapids Herald, has been made a part of bulletins sent out to postoffice department employees, with the approval of the postmaster general. It treats of an evil common enough in all cities of the country. The New York postoffice, for Manhattan alone, handles 350,000 pieces of misdirected mail every day. Grand Rapids has an average of 5000 pieces.

Included in the mail which must be handled over and over in an effort to deliver, are letters mailed without postage, illegibly addressed, wrongly addressed or without street address. A large force must be maintained to handle this class of mail. The city directory must be consulted where no street addresses are given and where the writing is illegible experts must make an effort to decipher it.

People expect prompt service from the postal department, and every one connected with the work is told that the public must have its mail as rapidly as the work can be handled. If the department's critics took care to address mail carefully and correctly and attach the required postage, there would be little need for large forces in every postoffice of any size to handle misdirected or inadequately directed mail. Another thing the people never seem to learn is that the abbreviations "Cal." and "Col." look exactly alike when carelessly written. Abbreviations are frequently doubtful. It is better to spell out all the address.

NINETY-FIRST DIVISION IS COMING FOR REUNION

Covina valley veterans of the ninety-first division have signified their intention of being present at the annual reunion of that great fighting body, when it convenes in Los Angeles on Saturday and Sunday of September 24 and 25.

"Powder River—Let 'Er Buck," that slogan that resisted all the efforts of Oxford university professors to translate into meaning, will ring down the streets of the city, and the motto, "Always Ready," will float from the buildings along the line of march.

One year and twenty-one days after these boys were mustered into service from Oregon, Nevada, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, Washington, Montana, Alaska and California, they were attacking the Prussian Guards and driving them toward the Rhine. Between September 26, 1918, and November 11 of that year, this Wild West division captured 33 pieces of artillery, 471 machine guns, 2,412 prisoners, and lost 1,702 men in deaths in the engagements. These men are many of them citizens of Southern California, and the entire citizenry of this end of the state will unite in doing them honor at this second reunion.

FORMER VALLEY PIONEER DIES AT LONG BEACH

Funeral services were held Wednesday of this week at Long Beach for Attorney John E. Daly, formerly a citizen of Glendora, and well known by pioneers throughout this valley.

John Daly was born in Hackensack, New Jersey, May 23, 1862. His career as a lawyer was largely spent in California, where, at the time of his death in Long Beach he was a director of the First National Bank, attorney for the Hotel Virginia, and a prominent member of the Republican party, of the chamber of commerce, fraternal societies and of the Presbyterian church.

In the earlier days he was attorney for the irrigating interests in the San Gabriel valley. For years he was attorney for the Azusa bank, and for the Azusa Irrigating Company. His funeral on Wednesday was attended by a number of the pioneers of the upper San Gabriel valley.

"ALL HUNTINGTON MUTUAL PROFITS FROM WELL NO. 1 WILL BE DISTRIBUTED IN DIVIDENDS." ---(Per Order Board of Directors)

Resolutions duly placed on minutes of Huntington Mutual Oil Company at a meeting this week, carrying out promises made to investors in this Covina Company. New directors who live and own property in the Upper San Gabriel Valley are elected, concentrating the control in the valley, thus making the company an absolute local concern.

Rotary machinery purchased and operating. Selling campaign now in progress to buy well casing. This company buys as it goes. It does not contract debts. Your decision to invest is needed now in order that drilling may go on without interruption. Your neighbors are stockholders. Why not you?

RESOLUTION

RESOLVED—The board of directors of the Huntington Mutual Oil Company, in regular session this day, Wednesday, September 14, 1921, do hereby engage to pay all net income from the property known as Well No. 1, at Huntington Beach, California, as dividends to the stockholders of the company being a corporation formed under the laws of the state of California.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that these dividends shall be paid monthly to all stockholders, beginning with the first accrued net profits over and above the expense of operation.

Signed: JESSE BERRY, President.
PERRY C. BASHORE, Vice President.
MRS. R. E. JOOS, Secretary-Treasurer.

ADDITIONAL FUTURE DEVELOPMENT

The Huntington Mutual Oil Company on Tuesday of this week acquired the lease on 160 acres of oil land in Coalinga, the greatest single oil producing field in the state. This lease is a part of the assets of all the stockholders of this company. When the present well comes in, dividends will immediately begin from the proceeds, as we have no debts and will have no debts. Stock should then go to fifty cents or higher. This will enable us to develop our other properties in Huntington Beach and in Coalinga. All this development will accrue to the benefit of the Huntington Mutual stockholders. GET IN NOW. MAKE THE WORK MOVE FAST.

For stock, for free information, or for a pleasant trip to the Huntington Beach oil fields without cost, see

ELECTIVE SYSTEM OF STUDIES IN SCHOOLS

Editor of the Argus:

Dear Sir:
"There are many leaders
In this enlightened day
Who shout for us to follow,
But do not know the way!"

Fortunately I have discovered a leader who does know the way to educate all of the children of all of the people.

I have just finished reading "All the Children of All the People," by William Hawley Smith. I wish everybody interested in people would read it. I feel that it should be made the textbook for the Parent-Teachers' association.

His plea is for the elective system of studies in every grade of high and grammar school.

The child too long has been forced to fit the school system. Now the time has come when we must fit the school to the individual.

"As a case in point, I once knew a boy who was an 'incorrigible' in school for many years. He had been suspended and expelled time and again. He was once expelled because he simply would not do written language work. When he was about sixteen, the superintendent met him on the street one day and said to him, 'George, is there anything in school you would like to study?' The boy said, 'Yes, I've always wanted to study chemistry, but I shall never know enough to do it.'"

The superintendent said, "If you will come to school tomorrow I'll put you into a chemistry class and you needn't study anything else." The boy agreed and the experiment was tried.

"Before the first term was over this boy slept in the school laboratory every night for a whole week in order to keep continuous watch over some delicate experiments he was making. He stuck to the work until he had done all the chemistry that could be done in the local school. He took up the chemistry course in college and headed his class. The last knew of the young man he was holding a responsible position as chemist in a large commercial establishment."

Has the Covina high school ever helped a boy that way? As a parent I'm ashamed to say I don't know. But as parents we must know and see that it is done!

"After all, what are our schools for but to establish character in our children? To produce such results it is right to tax all the people, and if they are forthcoming the money to pay for them will be furnished without grumbling. But not otherwise."—Wm. Hawley Smith.

FRUIT TREE IRRIGATION IMPORTANT AT THIS TIME

The agricultural extension service desires to call the attention of deciduous fruit growers particularly to the importance of providing deciduous fruit trees with an ample supply of soil moisture during the months of September and October.

Fruit bud differentiation is occurring at this time and if the trees suffer from lack of moisture it is certain to result in weak fruit buds for next season's crop.

Many orchards have been observed where the trees are now evidently in distress from lack of moisture, and borings in many orchards have indicated that the soil moisture content is getting very low. This is the critical season of the year for deciduous fruit trees, and permitting the trees to suffer from lack of moisture at this time cannot be offset by good pruning, adequate pest control or any other measures. In fact, permitting the trees to suffer during the period when fruit buds are being formed will largely vitiate whatever results might have been secured through improved pruning. Growers are therefore warned against permitting the soil to become dry.

H. S. Tripp, a former rancher in the Covina valley, was a visitor here this week. He is engaged in buying a stock of men's furnishing goods, and will open a store in Bishop.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR FARM BUREAU MEETING

Additional details of the program for the annual meeting of the Los Angeles county farm bureau, which will be held in Pomona on the 28th of September, have been announced by the headquarters of the farm bureau in Los Angeles. The meeting is to be held at Ganesha park under the auspices of the Pomona-Spadna-Walnut center and it is expected that several thousand farmers from all parts of the country will come to the event.

LOS ANGELES TIMES TO PORTRAY LOCAL SCENES

In the illustrated section of the Los Angeles Times of this coming Sunday there will be rotogravure pictures of Covina, Azusa and Glendora, according to a statement sent out this week by the Times circulation department. These scenes are of a series being taken by the Times throughout Southern California. The pictures will occupy two full pages.

BROADWELL IS BUYING LINEN FROM BELFAST

North of Ireland bills of lading were received this week by W. B. Broadwell of the Broadwell stores, coming ahead of a substantial shipment of Irish linen which the Covina merchant is buying direct from Belfast.

Mr. Broadwell has a policy well under way by which he is buying goods direct, both in the United States and in Europe, and by dealing for cash, without the intervention of the middleman, he is getting high grade products laid down in Covina at reasonable prices.

"That's all there is to this high-price condition in this country," said Mr. Broadwell. "If you go direct to the makers of the product with the money you can get the stuff at reasonable prices, and turn it over to the public at a reasonable price. If Irish linen passes through two or three hands in this country it becomes almost priceless. But if it is bought direct from Belfast as I am doing the prices fade away. Too many people have their hands in the pie nowadays. The middleman should be cut out and made to go to work, instead of taking their tithe from every article that is used by the American public."

Mr. Broadwell's consignment of Irish linen was bought on a basis large enough in quantity to supply all of the several stores he is operating in Southern California. The shipments come by vessel to San Pedro.

PIERCE AND NETZLEY ON OIL DIRECTORATE

Benjamin H. Pierce of Covina, well-known resident of the valley for many years, and John Netzley, a rancher living near Glendora, also well known to the citizens of the upper San Gabriel valley, were this week elected to positions on the directorate of the Huntington Mutual Oil company, a concern which has its offices in Covina, and which has been largely financed by ranchers and citizens of the valley communities.

With these elections the control of the company is brought entirely into this valley, according to a statement made yesterday by Jesse Berry of Covina, who is president and manager of the company. With these two men there is also Perry C. Bashore of Covina as a director, who is authorized to accept subscriptions for stock.

At a meeting held on Wednesday the directors passed a resolution which obligates the company to pay out all profits from well number one in Huntington Beach as dividends to the stockholders. Mr. Berry said that inasmuch as the company has a policy of not contracting any debt, the profits will all be available for dividends. The company also owns 160 acres of oil land in Coalinga, and has other assets besides the Huntington Beach property.

TEXAS WOMAN BUYS H. A. STANGE GROVE

One of the finest citrus properties in the upper San Gabriel valley, the H. A. Stange orchard at the termination of Azusa avenue in Valencia Heights, has been sold this week, the sale being made direct from owner to purchaser with no realty agency participating.

The purchaser is Mrs. Ella J. Hawkins of Seymour, Texas, mother of Mrs. V. T. Blocker, who is a resident of Valencia Heights. Mr. and Mrs. Blocker recently purchased ten acres of the Franklin Flick orchard.

The Stange orchard contains twenty acres, twelve of valencias and seven of lemons, and is in a high state of cultivation, improved by a modern home. The purchase price was $75,500.

Mrs. Hawkins and Mr. and Mrs. Blocker will make their home in the Stange residence. Mr. and Mrs. Stange will move to Los Angeles for the present.

RECEPTION TO TEACHERS BY COVINA CHURCHES

A program has been prepared, and there will be refreshments served, for which the following committee has been appointed: Mrs. F. L. Douglas, chairman; Mmes. J. P. Overholzer, J. H. Brubaker, B. M. Given, George F. Rinehart, George M. Jennings, W. J. Evans, Ida Ames, Tom Johnson, Harry R. Webber, M. E. Clifford, and Gordon C. Douglas.

CHILDREN'S CAMP OPEN FOR ANOTHER MONTH

Contrary to the two previous years in the Children's camp history, when the camp was closed at the beginning of school, it is the plan this year to continue the camp at least a month longer for the benefit of the children who are not strong enough to go to school, so that fully seventy-five girls will be up in the canyon through this month. Eggs and fruit are still needed and can be left at any of the grocery stores, or will be called for if word is telephoned Mrs. Mary M. Coman, 701.

BOYS RETURN FROM STATE HI Y CAMP

The Hi camp conducted by the Y. M. C. A. which closed last Friday marks a new era in camps for high school boys in this state.

Long Beach generously loaned its beautiful camping site in the West Fork of the San Gabriel canyon. Forty-five of the most representative boys of the two upper classes of the high schools of the south gathered here for a week of intensive training in leadership.

The mornings were occupied in conferences and discussion periods dealing with the every day problems of high school life. These periods were under the direction of experts in leadership training.

The afternoons were given over to group games and athletics, also under trained leaders furnished by the Y. M. C. A. The evenings found the boys gathered around the camp fire for a jolly sing and social time and to listen to the reading of the camp newspaper, "The Kamp Kolo Krabber." "Fighting Bob Schuler" of Los Angeles was the guest at several of these camp fires and his inspirational talks were a great contribution to the success of the camp.

Boys and leaders are enthusiastic and without doubt this Hi Y camp will be an annual event in Southern California hereafter. L. C. McDonald, San Gabriel valley secretary for the Y. M. C. A., had supervision of the games and athletics, and also served as camp doctor. Ralph Cole, state boys' work director, was in charge of camp.

TENT HOUSES MAY SOLVE SHELTER PROBLEM IN AZUSA

Houses in Azusa are so scarce that people are being turned away every day because they can find no place in which to live. One man whose occupation compelled him to live in Azusa resorted to the expedient of buying a lot on which he will build a tent house for the present, and others are contemplating similar action. More houses were erected here in the past year than ever before in the same length of time and a movement is on foot to erect many more.

LOCAL W. C. T. U. TO START NEW PLANS

Following the new enthusiasm and impetus of the recent national convention at San Francisco, the Covina white ribboners will inaugurate a new series of plans which call for very practical charity work in the making of baby clothes, holding all-day meetings, with social lunch hour once a month, and in addition to doing active departmental work, will definitely study some of the present-day problems in civics. The next regular meeting will be held next week Friday, at the home of Mrs. Nellie Sides on East Italia street, beginning at half past ten. The morning will be devoted to a continuance of the very interesting reports from the San Francisco convention from the three delegates, Mesdames Edwards, Matthews and Coman, with necessary business, followed by the basket lunch. In the afternoon, while the women are sewing, either on the little layette or their own stitching, Mrs. Elizabeth Elston, with Mrs. Edwards, will present an interesting and practical program along the line of civic information.

At the recent lecture given by the state president, Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, there were several new members gained for the local union and these are especially invited to the meeting next Friday. Further details will be given in next week's papers.

RETURNED MISSIONARY TALKS ON EXPERIENCES IN KOREA

The first missionary supper and address of the fall was a great success Wednesday evening, when over a hundred gathered to hear Miss Louise Hayes of Pasadena, recently returned after three years' work in Korea, tell of the conditions and missionary successes there. Miss Hayes, herself the daughter of missionaries and a recent graduate of Occidental, has a charming personality and her talk was full of vivid pictures of quaint and fascinating Korea, of her struggles for independence, of the remarkable reception of the Christian religion and of the present-day trying conditions under Japanese control. Running through the talk were touches of humor and vital human interest stories which made the address of much more than usual interest. As one man present remarked, "For a missionary talk it had the most kick in it I have heard in a good many years."

It Doesn't Pay to Be Indecent

Dr. Horace Porter, mayor of Riverside, in commenting on the Arbuckle-Rappe murder case, alluded to a wealthy rancher of Riverside county, who, on his hundredth birthday, was asked the secret of his longevity. "It pays to be decent," the centenarian said.

"It Doesn't Pay to Be Indecent," the words that should be printed on neat little cards and tacked up in the dressing rooms of the motion picture studios, signed by the management.
With equal fitness the little cards might be utilized as reminders in the banking business, the hardware business, the newspaper business, in churches, in schools and in all places where human beings are engaged in the activities of life. Indecency is by no means confined to the movies, but the difference between indecency on the part of movie folk and others is that screen stars are constantly in the limelight's glare, and their indecencies are much more a danger to morals than are the indecencies of lesser-known people. A crime committed by a movie actor may be no greater crime than a similar one committed by a small-town haberdasher, but the tremendous publicity that is inevitable in connection with the movie actor's crime centers the gaze of the nation and the world upon the crime,
for nothing can happen to a screen-star, good or bad, but that the public must share in it.

When the haberdasher in the small town commits a crime against society the interest in the case within that little town is just as intense as when Fatty Arbuckle gets into serious difficulties. But all the English-speaking world is interested in the alleged Arbuckle crime, for the simple reason that he commands a diversified, almost universal acquaintanceship through his professional activities.

William S. Hart, said to be a clean-minded and temperate motion picture star, deprecates the fact that the whole motion picture industry is under public indictment because of the Arbuckle-Rappe tragedy. He says that it is unfair to the industry. This, we believe, is not a fact. The motion picture industry is engaged in entertaining, interesting, and to a large extent, educating the public. The moral obligation upon its membership is very great, just as it is upon a great political figure, a national political party, a church organization of world-wide scope, or an educational institution. When Hart says that his industry should not be blamed any more than other industries are blamed when individuals within them go wrong, he is forgetting that which the motion picture industry is constantly attempting to prove, which is, that the industry is educational, and therefore in the role of a moral preceptor. When moral preceptors go wrong the fall makes more of a crash than when falls a person of little or no pretenses. All are equal before the law, but some assume the teaching and the upholding of the law, and when they fall they do indeed fall like Lucifer, a classic moral pre-tender.

The atmosphere surrounding the motion picture industry is rotten with the odors of immorality. If Bill Hart and some others are clean, they merely are the exceptions that prove the rule.

There is no reason why the industry should not be clean, excepting one, which is that it has not itself insisted on morality as a foundation for its business. That's all there is to it.
Many clean men and women are attracted into the business, and with few exceptions they become besmirched by the low order of morality. If they do not participate in actual immorality, they condone it and suffer it. As the industry is run today it is unclean.
Much of the beauty, much of education and of interest is created in it, but it has never been able to point a moral with emphasis, because of its own immorality. Picture actors and actresses portraying a great moral truth may do it with exceptional art, but it is always unconvincing. The words of the good man are as wings on the winds of wisdom, while the preachments of the mocker are accepted as mockery.

It is idle to expect the public to believe that a girl is pure in heart if she voluntarily goes to a booze party in the rooms of a public hotel, the rooms of a notorious libertine. If such a girl is outraged and is murdered while in those rooms the law will punish for this outrage and murder, and no circumstances, such as her voluntary presence in the rooms can be adjudged extenuating. But her presence there is an indictment of the motion picture industry, for the solemn reason that such presence reveals the absence of moral restraint within the industry. The industry, not the girl, is herein indicted, insofar as her presence in that room is concerned.

Long ago, some of the greatest industrial concerns of this country put up signs in their factories as follows:
"If You Drink You Can't Work Here."
Bill Hart points out that the motion picture industry is the third largest industry in the United States. If he,
and others, anxious to avoid the odium that surrounds the industry, will make it a rule to penalize men and women within it who put on nightly booze parties, who cohabit, who violate many of our most sacred laws with impunity, the odium will disappear. And films pointing a moral will then be less and less subjected to the criticism that they are mere mockeries. And in time the picture artists will find cleaner vehicles through which to point the morals, instead of so continuously suggesting the supposed pleasures to be found in bar-room brawls, parties in houses of ill fame, promiscuity between the sexes—with which we are so well supplied in practically every film that it made.

It is unfair and unnecessary to judge Fatty Arbuckle ahead of his trial. But we can judge him and condemn him for the life he has led, which made possible such an act as that with which he is charged. We can judge and condemn the motion picture industry for its lack of a moral foundation. That industry probably will become respectable as well as entertaining at some time in the future. But it will not be until the booze-fighters, the libertines and the rapists are cast out.

ARE YOU ONE OF THESE MOTORING "PESTS?"

Motoring "pests," characterized as cooties, hyenas, snakes, foxes and hogs, who make life unbearable for the average auto owner, have been listed by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

A good purpose is indicated by this listing in view of the fact that every auto driver is requested to read over this list and see if he qualifies as any one of the pests so outlined. If he does, he is respectfully requested to mend his way and think of the right of the "other fellow."

There is the "open road pest" who scoots in front of you with his little car and then slows down to a very slow pace so that you have to pass him. Then he spurts in front of you again and the performance has to be repeated. He gets much amusement out of this procedure, and is called the "fox." If you do this sort of thing, be merciful and stop it.

The "hyena" is the pest who drives fast into a mud-puddle and splashes its contents all over any pedestrians who happen to be standing near, then laughs over his shoulder as he drives away.
This type of pest is very common in Southern California.

The "curb louse" is the motorist who pushes your car along the curb to make room for his own and leaves yours standing in front of a fire-plug where it gets tagged and you have to try and explain the circumstances to the judge.

The "cootie" is the pest who oozes into the parking space you are backing into by nosing you out from the rear.
His car usually has a short wheel base which helps him in his dirty work.

Every Southern California auto driver knows the "hog." This pest operates on the open highways as well as in the cities. He is always trying to grab the right of way. He cuts in front of you whenever there is an opportunity. At safety-zones he comes around on your left and slips in front of you if he can wedge his front wheels ahead of yours. Don't belong in this category, whatever you do.

The "snake" strikes at your fenders as he passes. At night he usually has glaring headlights, and he drives so near the middle of the road that he would chip pieces off your fenders if you didn't get clear over into the opposite ditch. He just "scraps" by whenever there is the slightest chance.

Don't be one of these "pests," but help make Southern California a pleasant place for eastern visitors. Set good examples yourself, and the "pests" will perhaps follow in your footsteps.

FUMIGATION COSTS REDUCED MATERIALLY THIS YEAR

Fumigating in Los Angeles county on 27,000 acres of citrus orchards will cost many thousands of dollars less this year than last, according to estimates of the county horticultural department.
Causes occasioning the lower costs are said to be cheaper labor and slightly lower outlay on material.

Approximately $800,000 will be expended in the fumigating of trees, it is figured. The season, which is now at its height, will continue into the first of the year.

Inspectors employed by the county to advise citrus growers in the matter of fumigating have announced that less daylight work is being done this year than heretofore. It has been found that the results of the daylight fumigating were not sufficient to warrant doing away with the nighttime work.

Thus far this season 14 contractors have applied to the county horticulture department for certificates to operate, and 33 crew foremen have made application to take out licenses. There are 17 orchard inspectors employed by the world's deepest turbine lift

- a Layne & Bowler Achievement

Lifting water from great depths is successfully accomplished by Layne & Bowler turbine centrifugal pumps. Several years ago Layne & Bowler startled the irrigation world by announcing the installation of a pump installed to a depth of 400 feet for the city of Glendora.
This pump is still operating satisfactorily. Last year one of these pumps was installed to a depth of 490 feet on La Fourcade Rancho. This is, to our knowledge, the world's deepest turbine lift, an engineering feat that again demonstrates the superiority of L. & B. Pumps.

These two views show the Layne & Bowler Turbine Centrifugal Pump and House on La Fourcade Rancho,
two miles northeast of Cucamonga, California. The pump lifts 630 gallons of water per minute from a depth of 490 feet.

LONG TRIP IS ENDED BY PADDOCK FAMILY

F. G. Paddock, well known rancher of Vincent street, together with his family, returned this week from one of the longest automobile trips taken by any resident of the valley this year, and accompanied by many unusual experiences.

The trip consumed three months and twenty days, during which time they visited at Colorado Springs, old home points in Missouri and Kansas, and made a general tour of the middle-west. They escaped the terrible flood at Pueblo by just three days, as they had passed that city and were out of danger when the floods came.

Kansas and Missouri roads are a problem to the autoist, he says. Many days are spent in pulling each other out of the mud. Some of the worst conditions were encountered in New Mexico, where there have been heavy floods this summer.

JAMES BILYEU SUCCEUMBS TO PARALYTIC STROKE

James Bilyeu, for many years a rancher on Orange avenue, and who last spring sold his property here, died a week ago last Wednesday at the home of his daughter in Pine City, Washington, news of which has been received in this valley.

Mr. Bilyeu had purchased a home in Pomona, and together with his wife was visiting his children, making a trip to Arizona, Northern California, and to Washington. It was their intention to return to Pomona within a few days, but he was taken with a stroke of paralysis and died the same day he was stricken. The funeral was held on the following Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Coffman of West Center street have returned to their home after enjoying a month's deer hunting with a party of friends in the High Sierras.

Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Moon, who have been making their home at 139 Cottage Drive, moved this week into their new ranch home on the Covina boulevard, near Charter Oak. Doctor Moon recently purchased the west half of the Sprague orange grove, upon which he has erected a five-room residence. For thirty-five years he was a dentist in Beaver Dam, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Scofield motored their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Geo. Scofield, Jr., to Westmoreland, Imperial valley, last week-end and spent a few days with their sons who are ranching there. Mrs. Scofield, Jr., remained with her husband.

Miss Marsha Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bates of Azusa and Rowland avenues, has moved to Los Angeles, where she will attend the southern branch of the University of California this year.

Mrs. J. L. Dinwiddie of the San Antonio apartments, who has been on the sick list for the past week, is somewhat improved.

Miss Nellie Dinwiddie, assistant postmistress, is vacationing for two weeks. She will remain with her mother, Mrs. J. L. Dinwiddie, who has been ill for the past two weeks, until the latter is further improved.

DOWLER RETURNS FROM IDAHO RANCH COUNTRY

A. L. Dowler, owner of large citrus ranches southwest of Covina, has just returned from several weeks spent in Idaho, rounding up and cutting out cattle on a ranch of six thousand acres belonging to a company of which he is a director.

He spent many days in the saddle, he says, in a beautiful country, but where the cattlemen and business men are experiencing a depression that is not known in Southern California.

"Hundreds of men haven't the money to buy tires and gas for their automobiles," he said. "The best offer obtainable for beef was six and three-quarters cents per pound, f. o. b. Los Angeles, which means about four cents at the ranch. At the same time, any first class hotel will charge you about what a steer will bring for one order of steak."

Mr. Dowler said that Southern Californians are living in a paradise and perhaps do not wholly appreciate it.

"We don't know what poor business conditions are in this valley. You have to get out into other places to see what the readjustment period really means."
